SOUTHERN CROSS HAS ONE MOTOR OVERHAULED

SUVA ISLAND, 3,200 MILES AWAY, IS THE NEXT DESTINATION

CAPT. KINGSFORD-SMITH AND COMPANIONS MAY LEAVE TOMORROW

Honolulu, June 2.—(UP) — Safe in Honolulu after one perilous ocean flight, the crew of the Southern Cross turned today toward a second and perhaps even more dangerous part of their Pacific air voyage to Australia.

Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith and his three companions, honored by world acclaim for their courage went steadily forward with plans for the next leg of the longest flight ever attempted over the sea.

Suva, in the Fiji Islands, will be the destination. It is approximately 3,200 miles away, and the trip will be 800 miles longer than the non-stop journey which the airmen completed yesterday from Oakland.

The crew had planned to leave on the new flight tomorrow, but they may be delayed until Monday while the right motor of the Southern Cross is dismantled and inspected.

Cablegrams of congratulations showered down on the fliers from all parts of the world today. In Honolulu, where thousands waited anxiously during the tense hours they were fighting treacherous cross-currents over the Pacific, the men were accorded the greatest reception since the trail-blazing flight of Maitland and Hegenberger.

Those who shared the honors with Captain Kingsford-Smith were Capt. Charles T. P. Ulm, his fellow Australian and relief pilot; Lieut. Harry Lyon, navigator, and James Warner, radio operator.

A careful examination of the plane today will decide whether the men can leave on the second leg of their flight tomorrow, as they had planned.

Lyon said he was willing to navigate the plane anywhere, so long as there were small islands at fairly frequent intervals along the course. The chief danger of the long 3,200-mile jump to Suva was the possibility of running out of fuel.

As soon as the Southern Cross is ready to resume the Australian journey, it will be taken out to Barking Sands, on the island of Kaui, the only spot on the islands where a heavily loaded plane can make a run long enough to lift it from the ground.

Although the men said they were not particularly fatigued by the flight, they felt much better today after the night's rest. Even though the thrill of success had left them in buoyant spirits, some of them showed signs of the strain they had undergone when they retired last night.

The Southern Cross required 27 hours and 28 minutes for the flight from California. The most trying part of the journey, the four men agreed, was during the early hours of yesterday when they temporarily lost their bearings and were uncertain of the amount of gasoline left in the tanks. Once they had feared their fuel would be depleted before they reached land, but the gasoline gauge was found later to be registering faultily. They arrived at their goal with 130 gallons to spare.

Mechanics of the army air force at Wheeler Field were at work on the Southern Cross preparing it for the next hop on the record-breaking flight to Australia.

It was found necessary to tear down the starboard motor of the plane and give it a complete overhauling. This work forced a delay in plans to take the plane to the Barking Sands flying field on the island of Kauai, 100 miles distant from Wheeler Field.

Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith, commander of the plane, and his three companions hope to take off from Barking Sands Monday for Suva, in the Fiji Islands.

This leg of the California-Australia flight will cover a stretch of 3,144 miles of water never before attempted by any aviator. It will represent the most hazardous stage of Kingsford-Smith's venture.

Many were convinced the attempt would be suicidal and officials of Bishop Museum, who are thoroughly familiar with the South Sea islands, may try to dissuade them.

Captain Kingsford-Smith, however, appeared determined to make the attempt.

VICE PRESIDENT SELECTION GETS SOME ATTENTION

MANY HAVE BEEN MENTIONED FOR HONOR IN TWO MAJOR PARTIES

CERTAIN MEN REPRESENTING CERTAIN SECTIONS STAND OUT PROMINENTLY

Washington, June 2.—(UP)—The end of the pre-convention presidential campaigns is directing attention to the vice-presidential half of the republican and democratic tickets.

Many have been mentioned as vice-presidential candidates. The chances of any one of them are about as good as those of any other, viewed from even this short distance before Kansas City or Houston; for the selection will grow from the occasion. All depends upon who is nominated for president, since a vice-presidential candidate is a bid for sectional or group support—an offset to the presidential candidate in some respects.

Certain men representing certain sections or groups or interests stand out, however. Those mentioned include:

Republicans—Senator Moses, New Hampshire; Curtis, Kansas; Edge, New Jersey, McNary, Oregon; Governor Fuller of Massachusetts; Speaker of the House Longworth; Republican Floor Leader Tilson, and William J. ("Wild Bill") Donovan, world war hero and assistant attorney general.

Democrats — Senators Robinson, Arkansas; George, Georgia; Bayard, Delaware; Harrison, Mississippi; Barkley, Kentucky, and Walsh, Montana; Rep. Cordell Hull, Tennessee; Governors Donahey, Ohio; Moody, Texas, and McLean, North Carolina, and Jesse Jones of Texas, who carried the democratic convention to Houston.

None of these may be chosen. A figure may rise suddenly in the conventon, such as that of Calvin Coolidge in 1920. It is the uncertainty that gives hope to many in these days. They know that unknown men have been seized from minor prominence to become vice-presidents, and some of them elevated, by tricks of fate, from the calm seat of the vice-presidency to that of president. They are thinking of that lull after the mad convention climax has produced a presidential candidate and weary delegates cast about for a vice-presidential nominee.

AMARILLO EDITOR SCORES COL. LINDBERGH

SEVERAL HUNDRED SCHOOL CHILDREN VOICE THEIR PROTESTS

MERCHANTS ALSO RESENT THE CRITICISM OF FLIER IN THE "GLOBE"

Amarillo, Texas, June 2.—(UP)—Townspeople were up in arms here over an article in the Amarillo Globe in which Gene Howe, the editor, asserts that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is suffering from a case of "swell head."

Several hundred school children held a meeting and voiced their protests. They were joined by merchants of the city who threatened to withdraw their advertising from the paper.

That he was justified in his criticism of the national hero, Howe said, was indicated by several hundred letters from subscribers who sided with him.

Howe said the other day while Lindbergh was flying to the Pacific coast he was invited to vistt Amarillo. He issued a public statement that he would not stop here but would continue to Clovis, N. M., for his night stop. The next morning, however, Lindbergh landed in Amarillo unexpectedly.

"Some of his elders should teach him some manners," declared Howe. "Did he quietly refuel and proceed on his way? No!"

"Lindbergh made two swings over the city advertising that the air god was here. He then settled down on the landing field and when Amarillo people began to flock to the field he proceeded to act bored and annoyed, and was almost insolent."

Howe apparently was not worried over the storm of protest that has fallen about his head for he says he has friends who say he is the first editor who has dared criticise the world hero.

'RED CAPS' MAY WORK 24 HOURS A DAY CONVENTION TIME

Kansas City, Mo., June 2.—(U.P.)—The "red caps" who carry bags for travelers, are preparing to work "twenty-four hours a day" if necessary to serve the throngs expected to arrive here next week for the republican national convention.

That, and "business as usual" were the only orders issued to the ushers and other employes at the union station.

"Our boys are used to handling motion picture stars, railroad presidents, nobility and opera stars," said L. C. Custenborder, assistant station master. "I suppose the nobility of the republican party will be handled in about the same way."

CANADA TO JOIN IN RENUNCIATION OF WAR TREATY

Washington, June 2.—(U.P.)—Canada is the latest of the British dominions to accept the American invitation to become a party to the proposed renunciation of war treaty.

FARM LEADERS OF 14 CORN BELT STATES MEET

HOPE TO SECURE "PROTECTION AND RELIEF" FOR MIDDLE WESTERN FARMERS

Chicago, June 2.—(UP) — Farm leaders of fourteen corn belt states met here today to draft a program of political activity which they hope will secure for the middle western farmer governmental "protection and relief."

The meeting, specifically, was in charge of chairmen of the fourteen states committee, organized recently to protest President Coolidge's second veto of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill.

The general "protest" or "farmers' revolt," however, involved the presidential candidacies of three middle western favorite sons, namely, Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, U. S. Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, and Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas.

The object of the meeting, however general, was to plan the so-called "second caravan of the covered wagon" — the proposed mass movement of farmers upon the republican national convention at Kansas City.

Leaders of the movement pointed out that the meeting represented states which claim a total of 380 voting delegates at the national convention, and that the movement, despite derision from some quarters, was serious.

Mark Woods, Lincoln, Neb., and Judge F. J. Graham, national committeeman from North Dakota, participated in preliminary meetings here last night.

They said at least 150,000 farmers would march on the national convention to "demand their rights."

Three circus main-tops have been engaged at Kansas City, Wood said, and will be erected next week. Extensive parking grounds also have been provided on the Missouri and the Kansas side.

BAKER NAMED ON HAGUE ARBITRATION TRIBUNAL BY COOLIDGE

Washington, June 2.—(U.P.)—President Coolidge has appointed former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker as the fourth American member of The Hague arbitration tribunal, the state department announced today.

FAMILIES OF LEADERS FLEEING INTO MANCHURIA

Shanghai, June 2—(UP)—Evacuation of Peking by the northern forces of General Chang Tso-Lin, Manchurian war lord, who has been in control of the central China government, was expected momentarily today.

Families of northern leaders already were fleeing into Manchuria.

Chang's main army is engaging the nationalist forces at Liuliho, 36 miles below Peking on the Peking-Hankow railroad, and the outcome of the battle probably will decide whether and how soon Chang will give up Peking to the invading southern nationalist armies.

General Chang Tsung Chang, ally of Chang Tso-Lin, who has controlled the fighting in defense of Tien Tsin, already has ordered a general retreat of his armies, advices here said. There have been general retreats all along the northern defense line which is about 100 miles long, extending from Liuliho on the Peking-Hankow railroad to Machang on the Tien Tsin-Pukow railroad.

These general retreats are said to have demoralized the entire northern forces, variously estimated at from 175,000 to 200,000 men.

Meanwhile protection of foreigners in Tien Tsin and Peking is presenting a problem as occupancy of those two places by nationalist forces seems likely.

American Minister MacMurray and other diplomatic representatives conferred with Chang Tso-Lin to discuss safety measures for foreigners now in Peking in event Chang flees the city. Chang, however, refused to say when he expected to leave but promised to maintain peace and order in the capital, and is understood to be planning a committee of public safety.

It is understood here that barricades have been erected at Tien Tsin in event the northerners retreat from the field and are followed in by lawless troops.

London, June 2—A general northward movement of the Chinese northern army was reported underway today by the Hong Kong correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph.

Thus far no fighting between the northerners and the nationalists has been reported.

The Hong Kong correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph said that northern leaders had conferred over the present acute situation but had decided not to evacuate Peking immediately.

Peking, June 2.—Chang Tso-Lin, dictator of northern China, in a statement tonight said that he proposed to withdraw immediately with all his troops to Manchuria, and turn over administration of Peking to a temporary government.

SHALL SCHOOL BOARD DICTATE STUDENTS APPAREL?

Walsenburg, Colo., June 2.—(U.P.)—The state supreme court Monday will decide the right of a school board to dictate the wearing apparel of girl students.

Last November the school authorities here ruled that all girls must wear middy blouses.

Rosalie Lamme, 16, appeared in a white blouse and was sent home. When she wore the same garb the next day, she was suspended. The lower courts upheld the school board and Rosalie's father has taken the case to the supreme court.

7 CRAFT SINK IN VALPARAISO HARBOR, CHILE

Santiago, Chile, June 2. (U.P.)—Seven small craft in Valparaiso harbor were sunk and several great landslides were reported in the worst rainstorm and gale in the memory of Chile.

Thus far no casualties have been reported.

The steamer Lautaro was grounded in the gale and was completely destroyed.

"THIRD PARTY" MOVEMENTS ARE NOW DISCOUNTED

NO TRUTH TO RUMORS ABOUT A THIRD OR EVEN FOURTH PARTY

FARMERS' CALL TO BE HEEDED AT KANSAS CITY AND HOUSTON

Washington, June 2. — (UP) — Political authorities discounted today recurring reports of "third party" movements.

There is the usual crop of pre-convention rumors that a third, and even a fourth major party, might sprng up after the Kansas City and Houston conventions as various "revolts" crystallize.

Chief among the rumors are stories that the farmers may start a new party if their wishes are unheeded at Kansas City and that the drys may form a new group if Gov. Smith s nominated at Houston. Politicians, however, have not been disturbed by the alleged movements, and doubt anything serious will develop from them.

The convention probably will heed the farmer's call—but not to the extent of disavowing President Coolidge's veto of the McNary-Haugen farm relief measure. What the farmers will do if they fail to achieve their aims at Kansas City is problematical.

But the politicians are skeptical that their revolt will go so far as to lead to formation of another party. They may register their displeasure in the fall elections, depending, of course, upon whom the convention nominates; or, again, they may have less effect on the balloting than some now foresee.

Meantime, there has been some talk of forming a dry party, gathering its strength from the prohibiton elements of both parties. It is not generally believed this will materialize any more than the farm party. Dry organizations have served notice they will watch carefully all candidates, and will work actively against any "wet." That, it is felt, will suffice for the active drys.

Moreover, third parties cost money and there have been no signs of an "angel" in the offing to finance such a movement.

Still another factor operating against formation of such movements is that it is now grownig late to enter names in some states.

FIRE THREATENED 300,000 GALLONS OF GASOLINE

Minneapolis, June 2. — (U.P.) — Fire which for a time threatened to destroy 300,000 gallons of gasoline and oil was successfully combatted today only after it had razed the Shaw-Enochs Tractor company at an estimated $200,000 loss.

Less than 200 feet from the burning tractor company buildings was stored 70,000 gallons of gasoline and 200,000 gallons of lubricating and crude oil.

Firemen averted the spread of flames over the oil soaked ground by digging a broad trench around the burning buildings.

COFFEE COMPANY SELLS HOLDINGS FOR $45,000,000

Nashville, Tenn., June 2.—(U.P.)—Officials of Cheek-Neal company, producers of Maxwell House coffee, and one of the largest producers in the world, announced sale of their property today to the Postum Cereal company of Battle Creek, Mich., for a consideration of $45,000,000. Offices of the coffee house are expected to be moved to Battle Creek.

4 NATIONS TO SEND RELIEF EXPEDITIONS

TWO SMALL GROUPS PLUNGING INTO AREA NORTH OF SPITZBERGEN

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, June 2—(UP)—The snow and ice bound wastes of the Arctic today held tenaciously to the secret of the dirigible Italia's fate, and relief expeditions were planned by at least four nations.

Already two small groups are plunging into the little known district of northern Spitzbergen, bent on determining whether the dirigible and its crew of 16 men suddenly plunged to the ice coated earth one week ago yesterday.

The two groups were composed of chasseurs landed by the Citta Di Milano. Headed by guides who had roamed through the frozen country, the two teams plowed through the northern part of this island — one taking a coast route and the other striking inland towards Northeastland, the bleak island near Spitzbergen.

Meanwhile, the nations of north and south Europe combined to rescue the daring explorer, General Umberto Nobile and his aides.

Norway gave its best flying officers and ships. Russia gave airplanes and two ice breakers. Sweden offered aid. Italy has chartered one whaler to attempt to save her countrymen, and a swift and powerful seaplane will be here to aid in the rescue expeditions. The seaplane was expected to arrive some time next week and will work with the Citta Di Milano, supply ship, which already has made one venturesome journey through the ice floes to the north of Kings Bay. The Citta Di Milano may take out again next week.

Leaders in the world of aviation and scientific exploration have joined in sending relief to Nobile, who may be attempting to beat back through uncharted lands to the base here.

By mid-week it is expected that several expeditions will be underway.

TWO ITALIANS BREAK WORLD'S RECORD FOR SUSTAINED FLIGHT

Rome, June 2.—(U.P.)—Maj. Ferrerin and Del Prete, army aviators, landed today after breaking the world's record for sustained airplane flight. They had been in the air nearly 59 hours.

At midday they had been in the air more than an hour longer than George Haldeman and Eddie Stinson, who set a new record of 53 hours, 36 minutes and 41 seconds last March in Florida.

Nasiriyah, June 2.—(U.P.)—The Spanish flyers, Captain Ignacio Jiminez and Captain Francisco Iglesias, arrived at Dawaya near here, it was confirmed today, in their long distance flight from Seville.

They had started out in an attempt to establish a new long distance record but fell almost 1,000 miles short of their goal.

The endurance flight record of 53 hours, 36 minutes and 41 seconds was established March 30 by Captain George Haldeman and Eddie Stinson, in a Stinson monoplane.

They took off from Daytona Beach, Fla., and flew up and down the Florida coast line in establishing their new mark. Their record broke that of the German flyers Edward and Risticz.

FAMILIES OF LEADERS FLEEING INTO MANCHURIA

Shanghai, June 2—(UP)—Evacuation of Peking by the northern forces of General Chang Tso-Lin, Manchurian war lord, who has been in control of the central China government, was expected momentarily today.

Families of northern leaders already were fleeing into Manchuria.

Chang's main army is engaging the nationalist forces at Liuliho, 36 miles below Peking on the Peking-Hankow railroad, and the outcome of the battle probably will decide whether and how soon Chang will give up Peking to the invading southern nationalist armies.

General Chang Tsung Chang, ally of Chang Tso-Lin, who has controlled the fighting in defense of Tien Tsin, already has ordered a general retreat of his armies, advices here said. There have been general retreats all along the northern defense line which is about 100 miles long, extending from Liuliho on the Peking-Hankow railroad to Machang on the Tien Tsin-Pukow railroad.

These general retreats are said to have demoralized the entire northern forces, variously estimated at from 175,000 to 200,000 men.

Meanwhile protection of foreigners in Tien Tsin and Peking is presenting a problem as occupancy of those two places by nationalist forces seems likely.

American Minister MacMurray and other diplomatic representatives conferred with Chang Tso-Lin to discuss safety measures for foreigners now in Peking in event Chang flees the city. Chang, however, refused to say when he expected to leave but promised to maintain peace and order in the capital, and is understood to be planning a committee of public safety.

It is understood here that barricades have been erected at Tien Tsin in event the northerners retreat from the field and are followed in by lawless troops.

London, June 2—A general northward movement of the Chinese northern army was reported underway today by the Hong Kong correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph.

Thus far no fighting between the northerners and the nationalists has been reported.

The Hong Kong correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph said that northern leaderg had conferred over the present acute situation but had decided not to evacuate Peking immediately.

Peking, June 2.—Chang Tso-Lin, dictator of northern China, in a statement tonight said that he proposed to withdraw immediately with all his troops to Manchuria, and turn over administration of Peking to a temporary government.

SHALL SCHOOL BOARD DICTATE STUDENTS APPAREL?

Walsenburg, Colo., June 2.—(U.P.)—The state supreme court Monday will decide the right of a school board to dictate the wearing apparel of girl students.

Last November the school authorities here ruled that all girls must wear middy blouses.

Rosalie Lamme, 16, appeared in a white blouse and was sent home. When she wore the same garb the next day, she was suspended. The lower courts upheld the school board and Rosalie's father has taken the case to the supreme court.

7 CRAFT SINK IN VALPARAISO HARBOR, CHILE

Santiago, Chile, June 2.—(U.P.)—Seven small craft in Valparaiso harbor were sunk and several great landslides were reported in the worst rainstorm and gale in the memory of Chile.

Thus far no casualties have been reported.

The steamer Lautaro was grounded in the gale and was completely destroyed.

"THIRD PARTY" MOVEMENTS ARE NOW DISCOUNTED

NO TRUTH TO RUMORS ABOUT A THIRD OR EVEN FOURTH PARTY

FARMERS' CALL TO BE HEEDED AT KANSAS CITY AND HOUSTON

Washington, June 2. — (UP) — Political authorities discounted today recurring reports of "third party" movements.

There is the usual crop of pre-convention rumors that a third, and even a fourth major party, might sprng up after the Kansas City and Houston conventions as various "revolts" crystallize.

Chief among the rumors are stories that the farmers may start a new party if their wishes are unheeded at Kansas City and that the drys may form a new group if Gov. Smith s nominated at Houston. Politicians, however, have not been disturbed by the alleged movements, and doubt anything serious will develop from them.

The convention probably will heed the farmer's call—but not to the extent of disavowing President Coolidge's veto of the McNary-Haugen farm relief measure. What the farmers will do if they fail to achieve their aims at Kansas City is problematical.

But the politicians are skeptical that their revolt will go so far as to lead to formation of another party. They may register their displeasure in the fall elections, depending, of course, upon whom the convention nominates; or, again, they may have less effect on the balloting than some now foresee.

Meantime, there has been some talk of forming a dry party, gathering its strength from the prohibiton elements of both parties. It is not generally believed this will materialize any more than the farm party. Dry organizations have served notice they will watch carefully all candidates, and will work actively against any "wet." That, it is felt, will suffice for the active drys.

Moreover, third parties cost money and there have been no signs of an "angel" in the offing to finance such a movement.

Still another factor operating against formation of such movements is that it is now grownig late to enter names in some states.

FIRE THREATENED 300,000 GALLONS OF GASOLINE

Minneapolis, June 2. — (U.P.) — Fire which for a time threatened to destroy 300,000 gallons of gasoline and oil was successfully combatted today only after it had razed the Shaw-Enochs Tractor company at an estimated $200,000 loss.

Less than 200 feet from the burning tractor company buildings was stored 70,000 gallons of gasoline and 200,000 gallons of lubricating and crude oil.

Firemen averted the spread of flames over the oil soaked ground by digging a broad trench around the burning buildings.

COFFEE COMPANY SELLS HOLDINGS FOR $45,000,000

Nashville, Tenn., June 2.—(U.P.)—Officials of Cheek-Neal company, producers of Maxwell House coffee, and one of the largest producers in the world, announced sale of their property today to the Postum Cereal company of Battle Creek, Mich., for a consideration of $45,000,000. Offices of the coffee house are expected to be moved to Battle Creek.

4 NATIONS TO SEND RELIEF EXPEDITIONS

TWO SMALL GROUPS PLUNGING INTO AREA NORTH OF SPITZBERGEN

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, June 2—(UP)—The snow and ice bound wastes of the Arctic today held tenaciously to the secret of the dirigible Italia's fate, and relief expeditions were planned by at least four nations.

Already two small groups are plunging into the little known district of northern Spitzbergen, bent on determining whether the dirigible and its crew of 16 men suddenly plunged to the ice coated earth one week ago yesterday.

The two groups were composed of chasseurs landed by the Citta Di Milano. Headed by guides who had roamed through the frozen country, the two teams plowed through the northern part of this island — one taking a coast route and the other striking inland towards Northeastland, the bleak island near Spitzbergen.

Meanwhile, the nations of north and south Europe combined to rescue the daring explorer, General Umberto Nobile and his aides.

Norway gave its best flying officers and ships. Russia gave airplanes and two ice breakers. Sweden offered aid. Italy has chartered one whaler to attempt to save her countrymen, and a swift and powerful seaplane will be here to aid in the rescue expeditions. The seaplane was expected to arrive some time next week and will work with the Citta Di Milano, supply ship, which already has made one venturesome journey through the ice floes to the north of Kings Bay. The Citta Di Milano may take out again next week.

Leaders in the world of aviation and scientific exploration have joined in sending relief to Nobile, who may be attempting to beat back through uncharted lands to the base here.

By mid-week it is expected that several expeditions will be underway.

TWO ITALIANS BREAK WORLD'S RECORD FOR SUSTAINED FLIGHT

Rome, June 2.—(U.P.)—Maj. Ferrerin and Del Prete, army aviators, landed today after breaking the world's record for sustained airplane flight. They had been in the air nearly 59 hours.

At midday they had been in the air more than an hour longer than George Haldeman and Eddie Stinson, who set a new record of 53 hours, 36 minutes and 41 seconds last March in Florida.

Nasiriyah, June 2.—(U.P.)—The Spanish flyers, Captain Ignacio Jiminez and Captain Francisco Iglesias, arrived at Dawaya near here, it was confirmed today, in their long distance flight from Seville.

They had started out in an attempt to establish a new long distance record but fell almost 1,000 miles short of their goal.

The endurance flight record of 53 hours, 36 minutes and 41 seconds was established March 30 by Captain George Haldeman and Eddie Stinson, in a Stinson monoplane.

They took off from Daytona Beach, Fla., and flew up and down the Florida coast line in establishing their new mark. Their record broke that of the German flyers Edward and Risticz.

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

June 1, 1903

The display in Miss McFadden's millinery window for Decoration Day has attracted considerable attention. In the one window is the figure of a lady dressed in mourning representing Mrs. McKinley and in the other is the picture of the late president draped in heavy mourning. It is a very neat and attractive display and reflects credit on Miss McFadden.

A twelve pound boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Brown yesterday. Mr. Brown is foreman for the Pine Tree Lumber company at Crooked Lake, but was too tickled to leave for camp this afternoon.

A notable sight in line on Decoration Day was Comrade J. R. Wood, of Long Prairie. He was at one time a resident of this city and came over from Todd county to spend the day with the boys. He was as proud as a peacock when the boys fell in line at 2 o'clock to march to the opera house and seemed as nimble as the majority of the old comrades. He has just passed his 95th birthday.

Mrs. E. H. Simons left this afternoon for Minneapolis to meet her daughter who has been attending school at Faribault. They will visit in Minneapolis and St. Paul for a short time.

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

The display in Miss McFadden's millinery window for Decoration Day has attracted considerable attention. In the one window is the figure of a lady dressed in mourning representing Mrs. McKinley and in the other is the picture of the late president draped in heavy mourning. It is a very neat and attractive display and reflects credit on Miss McFadden.

A twelve pound boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Brown yesterday. Mr. Brown is foreman for the Pine Tree Lumber company at Crooked Lake, but was too tickled to leave for camp this afternoon.

A notable sight in line on Decoration Day was Comrade J. R. Wood, of Long Prairie. He was at one time a resident of this city and came over from Todd county to spend the day with the boys. He was as proud as a peacock when the boys fell in line at 2 o'clock to march to the opera house and seemed as nimble as the majority of the old comrades. He has just passed his 95th birthday.

Mrs. E. H. Simons left this afternoon for Minneapolis to meet her daughter who has been attending school at Faribault. They will visit in Minneapolis and St. Paul for a short time.

A. E. Taylor returned from White Fish Lake this afternoon on the belated M. & I. He went up with F. W. Wieland and Walter Wieland Saturday and they had a very pleasant outing.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hall are rejoicing over the arrival of a baby girl at their home this morning.

Mr. Schnell is head clerk in the office of the Northern Pacific Express Company in this city, and Miss Whitney, the bride-to-be has lived here with her parents for many years. Rev. S. W. Hover of the First Baptist church will officiate at the wedding in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends.

Henry I. Cohen has returned from a lake near Smiley where he fished for a day or two. He states that he had a most delightful trip but did not catch many bass; that they are not biting any too good. When Mr. Cohen cannot get a string it is time for all anglers to pull out.

DEFEATS LATZO IN TEN ROUNDS OF FIGHTING

CROWD OF 20,000 THOUGHT THAT LATZO WAS WINNING THE CHAMPIONSHIP

New York, June 2.—(UP)—Pete Latzo of Scranton, Pa., reached for the world's light heavyweight crown for a few brief moments last night, but did not have the courage, stamina nor fighting ability to make the final grasp.

Badly beaten through ten rounds of furious fighting, Tommy Loughran staged the come-back of his career in the last four rounds of his 15 round bout with Latzo and saved his 175-pound title by the barest of margins.

Latzo, rated a 1 to 5 shot when he crawled in the ring, almost accomplished what smart boxing men deemed the impossible—the defeat of Loughran, about the craftiest of champions.

Latzo fought himself out in the early rounds in a game attempt to knock out the champion. He landed numerous blows, had the champion in retreat, brought blood from his nose and opened an old cut under his chin and a new cut over his right eye. The crowd of 20,000 was in an uproar at the end of the tenth, believing a championship was passing.

Game to the core, Loughran took it, landing only left jabs as he backed away. The crowd howled for Latzo to deliver the finishing punch and Loughran caught hold of himself. He stopped boxing and began to fight. He brought his right into action. He began to put power into his lefts.

Having brushed Latzo aside Loughran must now prepare himself for his next championship bout against Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo at the Polo Grounds June 21. If he is victorious again Loughran will then meet Leo Lomski in another title bout, which probably will be staged early in July.

Madison Square Garden Takes in Much Money

Gross revenues of Madison Square Garden corporation for 1927 reached $7,650,518, an increase of 3 per cent over 1926. Net income was $1,014,199 after all charges, including federal taxes, equivalent to $3.12 a share on the capital stock outstanding, a gain of 30 per cent over the $2.42 a share earned in 1926 on sightly smaller capitalization.

George L. Rickard, president, informed stockholders that in the last two years the corporation had paid admission taxes of $1,661,871 and other taxes of $746,626, or a total of $2,133,497, exceeding the net income of $1,798,833 earned during the same two years.

The company ended the year with $986,966 cash and cash equivalent out of total quick assets of $1,166,797 and had net working capital of $613,920. A statement of consolidated income for 1926 and 1927 showed receipts from all sources of $2,661,771, of which $1,222,469 was added to capital account for investment in plant and reduction of mortgages, and only $446,479 paid out in dividends.

Sisler Has Average of .353 for Twelve Years

George Sisler last year scored a batting average of .327. At this moment he possesses a lifetime batting average of .343, which is the highest ever registered by a first sacker since the game began in 1876. For a number of years or, up until 1925, George Sisler's batting average of .353 for a lifetime work, stood as the highest ever recorded by a first baseman. This is Sisler's thirteenth season.

Dave Orr and Dan Brouthers, with lifetime batting averages of .352 and .348 respectively, now hold the throne and are the heaviest hitting duo of first basemen the game ever had.

TEN PRIZE WINNERS NOW IN NEW RACE

PETER PAN OF OPTIMISTS, C. C. PYLE, DRAWS BUT SMALL CROWD

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

Madison Square Garden, New York, June 2.—With an optimism which matched that of C. C. Pyle, the 26-hour team foot racers plodded around the ten-lap track in Madison Square Garden today, bent upon finishing out the fiasco which "Cash and Carry" set on foot (and bunions) some months ago in Los Angeles.

Pyle had paid the bill of $48,500 and that meant more to the prize winners in the trans-continental race than anything else, but still they plodded on.

The ten prize winners still in the race, but casting anxious eyes toward the exit as though they would prefer to run to the nearest bank with their certified checks, continued to pick up their feet and put them ahead around the boards which circled the all-but-empty Garden. Even C. C. Pyle, the Peter Pan of optimists, admitted that the total attendance to date had not exceeded 1,000, but still his foot racers, bearded, bronzed and otherwise, ran on and on and on.

The feature of the 26-hour race occurred before the runners were sent away.

Tex Rickard, a local promoter, stepped before the motion picture cameras, and presented to each of the first ten runners to finish in the coast-to-coast derby bank drafts for the sums they had won, ranging from Andy Payne's $25,000 down to the mere $1,000 collected by the men who finished between fifth and tenth places.

But the race proved a sad affair. The runners ran, the walkers walked, and at rare intervals prizes ranging as high as $25 were offered for a "sprint" as they say in the six-day bike races.

At dawn Madison Square Garden, scene of some of the world's most spectacular sporting events, presented a weird sight to the 50 spectators who remained. The broad running track, 11 laps to the mile, stretched around the concrete infield.

In the immediate center of the arena sat the promoter of the affair, the great "C. C." himself. Alone, but not dispirited, he beamed upon the passing host. He had started something, and although everyone else thought he had perpetrated one of the colossal flops in the history of sport, Pyle was not disillusioned.

Germany — Back in the Olympics

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

Cable reports from Europe indicate that the Germans will be stronger contenders for Olympic honors than was at first supposed. Within the past three weeks, there have been claims for three new world's records made on behalf of German athletes.

Surprising strength in field events, especially with the weights, has been disclosed during athletic meets in Silesia and Westphalia. Records which have remained on the books of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States for more than 20 years have been wiped out by German strong men.

Experience has shown that it does not take many first places outside the field events to assure a nation first place at any given Olympiad. The United States won out in 1924 and yet but one American won a running race.

Jealous Europeans called us "monkeys and acrobats" because we won a majority of our points at Paris in events such as the hurdles and the pole vault. It will be obviously unfair to criticize the Germans if they score heavily in the field events instead of on the track.

Germany's chances in the Olympic running events are rather slim. In the first place, it appears that Dr. Otto Peltzer probably will be unable to compete. His loss will be a source of regret to sportsmen everywhere, for the holder of the world's outdoor record for the half mile run is recognized as one of the really great middle distance runners of all time.

The 800 meters run at Amsterdam will not be the same event, with Peltzer absent.

Following his visit to the United States, Peltzer dislocated his ankle and the injury proved so serious that he has been advised that he cannot hope to compete in the Olympic games next summer. It may be that his ankle will mend better than his doctors believe and it certainly is to be hoped that such is the case. A race between Peltzer, Lloyd Hahn, the two Martins and Finland's great middle distance runners should be the climactic feature of the Ninth Olympiad.

Hans Hirschfeld, new to fame but a mighty man with the shot, is looked upon as a likely first place winner at Amsterdam. The German recently heaved the 16-pound ball considerably more than 51 feet. In so doing he bettered Ralph Rose's mark which was made a score of years ago.

The United States will have some excellent shot putters at Amsterdam, however, and the German strong man will have to be at his best. Stan Kuck, formerly of Kansas State Teachers College, also has bettered 51 feet in competition this year, while Eric Krenz of Stanford is good for better than 50 feet.

Germany's sprinters will require a bit of eliminating at Amsterdam, but none has reached the speed of which Charley Borah and some of our own youngsters have proved themselves capable.

It is certain that the Germans will be trying for points in all departments of track and field competition. They are sending the largest delegation of athletes to Amsterdam, stubbornly bent upon winning a place in the Olympic sun.

Germany, you see, never has won an individual Olympic gold medal since the games were revived in 1896. No German has finished first in any Olympic track or field event, save one relay runner whose team was promptly disqualified for infraction of the rules.

Braun, one of Germany's greatest middle distance runners before the war just failed to break the tape in an Olympic 800 metres run, and none of the various German athletes who have come forward from one Olympiad to another has been able to win a first place. This year, it may be different.

If the Olympic games were scored upon some definite point system, such as 5 for first, 4 for second, 3 for third, 2 for fourth and 1 for fifth, Germany would make a better showing than in the matter of first places. Some American commentators will attempt to score the 1928 games in that fashion, and it is likely that Germany will be found to stand not lower than third.

As a matter of fact, there is no internationally accepted scoring system for the Olympic games. It is a case of "Everybody keep his own count."

POOR HURLING IN FIRST INNING GIVES "Y" BOYS LEAD OF FIVE RUNS

A city league baseball game that progressed without much excitement came to a close in the dimming shadows of the evening Thursday with the Y. M. C. A. handing out a stiff defeat to the much praised South Siders by the score of 8 to 2.

That hectic first inning when 'Bus' Fitzharris was unable to put the apple over the home platter, started the Southside boys to a defeat they will remember for some time. Even after Fitzharris had been relieved and the trusty Whitlock came to the mound, the "Y" boys continued to go around the sacks on a succession of hits, walks and errors. The inning ended with the Y. M. C. A. sending home six men while the S. S. brought home one.

The remaining innings failed to reveal any bright baseball by either of the teams.

Fogelstrom, heaver for the "Y," was credited with the major share of the winning team's defensive work.

The teams lined up as follows:

Y. M. C. A.—J. Fitzharris, 2b; C. Orth, rf; Imgrund, ss; Ringer, c; Marshall, 3b; G. Orth, 1b; Beck, lf; Olson, cf; Fogelstrom, p.

Southside—L. Peterson, 1b; Uddenberg, ss; Peterson, cf; Hurr, c; Anderson, 2b; Hanson, lf; Whitlock, 3b; Block, lf; Fitzharris, p.

Umpires—Schwendeman and Elling.

N. E. Wins 2 to 0

In a close game last evening, the Northeast nine defeated the I. O. O. F. by the score of 2 to 0. Jarbo had ten strikeouts while J. Thompson had six to his credit.

The line-ups:

I. O. O. F.—Crawford, c; J. Thompson, p; J. Fitzharris, 2b; H. Bernard, rf; Loom, 3b; Johnson, ss; C. Erickson, cf; P. Bernard, lf; Swanson, 1b; Avery, rf.

Umpires: Erickson, Ringer.

Birds Eat Little Grain

The Department of Agriculture says that certain birds, the bobwhite, for example, eat more or less grain, but the grain feeding is largely in winter and on scattered seeds left in the fields. They prefer insects in the growing and harvesting periods. The barn owl is highly valuable for its feeding on small rodents in the South and on pocket gophers in the West.

JACK DEMPSEL SOUGHT TO LIFT CHURCH MORTGAGE

Los Angeles, June 2.—(U.P.)—Jack Dempsey's ring exhibition for the benefit of the fashionable Wilshire Boulevard Congregational church has been called off.

The former champion was going to put on the gloves in behalf of Dr. Frank Dyer, pastor, who is the center of a bitter factional dispute, and deliver a knockout to a mortgage.

Protests from other churches of the city answered the announcement of the proposal.

The exhibition was cancelled.

CROWD OF 20,000 THOUGHT THAT LATZO WAS WINNING THE CHAMPIONSHIP

New York, June 2.—(UP)—Pete Latzo of Scranton, Pa., reached for the world's light heavyweight crown for a few brief moments last night, but did not have the courage, stamina nor fighting ability to make the final grasp.

Badly beaten through ten rounds of furious fighting, Tommy Loughran staged the come-back of his career in the last four rounds of his 15 round bout with Latzo and saved his 175-pound title by the barest of margins.

Latzo, rated a 1 to 5 shot when he crawled in the ring, almost accomplished what smart boxing men deemed the impossible—the defeat of Loughran, about the craftiest of champions.

Latzo fought himself out in the early rounds in a game attempt to knock out the champion. He landed numerous blows, had the champion in retreat, brought blood from his nose and opened an old cut under his chin and a new cut over his right eye. The crowd of 20,000 was in an uproar at the end of the tenth, believing a championship was passing.

Game to the core, Loughran took it, landing only left jabs as he backed away. The crowd howled for Latzo to deliver the finishing punch and Loughran caught hold of himself. He stopped boxing and began to fight. He brought his right into action. He began to put power into his lefts.

Having brushed Latzo aside Loughran must now prepare himself for his next championship bout against Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo at the Polo Grounds June 21. If he is victorious again Loughran will then meet Leo Lomski in another title bout, which probably will be staged early in July.

Loom has been signed to play third base for the locals, which will round out a fast infield.

Brainerd has a complete schedule for June with Crosby-Ironton on the third, Onamia on the tenth, Wadena on the seventeenth and New York Mills on the twenty-fourth, when a big picnic will be staged at that place.

Madison Square Garden Takes in Much Money

Gross revenues of Madison Square Garden corporation for 1927 reached $7,650,518, an increase of 3 per cent over 1926. Net income was $1,014,199 after all charges, including federal taxes, equivalent to $3.12 a share on the capital stock outstanding, a gain of 30 per cent over the $2.42 a share earned in 1926 on slightly smaller capitalization.

George L. Rickard, president, informed stockholders that in the last two years the corporation had paid admission taxes of $1,661,871 and other taxes of $746,626, or a total of $2,133,497, exceeding the net income of $1,798,833 earned during the same two years.

The company ended the year with $986,966 cash and cash equivalent out of total quick assets of $1,166,797 and had net working capital of $613,920. A statement of consolidated income for 1926 and 1927 showed receipts from all sources of $2,661,771, of which $1,222,469 was added to capital account for investment in plant and reduction of mortgages, and only $446,479 paid out in dividends.

Sisler Has Average of .353 for Twelve Years

George Sisler last year scored a batting average of .327. At this moment he possesses a lifetime batting average of .343, which is the highest ever registered by a first sacker since the game began in 1876. For a number of years or, up until 1925, George Sisler's batting average of .353 for a lifetime work, stood as the highest ever recorded by a first baseman. This is Sisler's thirteenth season.

Dave Orr and Dan Brouthers, with lifetime batting averages of .352 and .348 respectively, now hold the throne and are the heaviest hitting duo of first basemen the game ever had.

TEN PRIZE WINNERS NOW IN NEW RACE

PETER PAN OF OPTIMISTS, C. C. PYLE, DRAWS BUT SMALL CROWD

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

Madison Square Garden, New York, June 2.—With an optimism which matched that of C. C. Pyle, the 26-hour team foot racers plodded around the ten-lap track in Madison Square Garden today, bent upon finishing out the fiasco which "Cash and Carry" set on foot (and bunions) some months ago in Los Angeles.

Pyle had paid the bill of $48,500 and that meant more to the prize winners in the trans-continental race than anything else, but still they plodded on.

The ten prize winners still in the race, but casting anxious eyes toward the exit as though they would prefer to run to the nearest bank with their certified checks, continued to pick up their feet and put them ahead around the boards which circled the all-but-empty Garden. Even C. C. Pyle, the Peter Pan of optimists, admitted that the total attendance to date had not exceeded 1,000, but still his foot racers, bearded, bronzed and otherwise, ran on and on and on.

Tex Rickard, a local promoter, stepped before the motion picture cameras, and presented to each of the first ten runners to finish in the coast-to-coast derby bank drafts for the sums they had won, ranging from Andy Payne's $25,000 down to the mere $1,000 collected by the men who finished between fifth and tenth places.

But the race proved a sad affair. The runners ran, the walkers walked, and at rare intervals prizes ranging as high as $25 were offered for a "sprint" as they say in the six-day bike races.

At dawn Madison Square Garden, scene of some of the world's most spectacular sporting events, presented a weird sight to the 50 spectators who remained. The broad running track, 11 laps to the mile, stretched around the concrete infield.

In the immediate center of the arena sat the promoter of the affair, the great "C. C." himself. Alone, but not dispirited, he beamed upon the passing host. He had started something, and although everyone else thought he had perpetrated one of the colossal flops in the history of sport, Pyle was not disillusioned.

Germany — Back in the Olympics

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

Cable reports from Europe indicate that the Germans will be stronger contenders for Olympic honors than was at first supposed. Within the past three weeks, there have been claims for three new world's records made on behalf of German athletes.

Surprising strength in field events, especially with the weights, has been disclosed during athletic meets in Silesia and Westphalia. Records which have remained on the books of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States for more than 20 years have been wiped out by German strong men.

Experience has shown that it does not take many first places outside the field events to assure a nation first place at any given Olympiad. The United States won out in 1924 and yet but one American won a running race.

Jealous Europeans called us "monkeys and acrobats" because we won a majority of our points at Paris in events such as the hurdles and the pole vault. It will be obviously unfair to criticize the Germans if they score heavily in the field events instead of on the track.

Germany's chances in the Olympic running events are rather slim. In the first place, it appears that Dr. Otto Peltzer probably will be unable to compete. His loss will be a source of regret to sportsmen everywhere, for the holder of the world's outdoor record for the half mile run is recognized as one of the really great middle distance runners of all time.

The 800 meters run at Amsterdam will not be the same event, with Peltzer absent.

Following his visit to the United States, Peltzer dislocated his ankle and the injury proved so serious that he has been advised that he cannot hope to compete in the Olympic games next summer. It may be that his ankle will mend better than his doctors believe and it certainly is to be hoped that such is the case. A race between Peltzer, Lloyd Hahn, the two Martins and Finland's great middle distance runners should be the climactic feature of the Ninth Olympiad.

Hans Hirschfeld, new to fame but a mighty man with the shot, is looked upon as a likely first place winner at Amsterdam. The German recently heaved the 16-pound ball considerably more than 51 feet. In so doing he bettered Ralph Rose's mark which was made a score of years ago.

The United States will have some excellent shot putters at Amsterdam, however, and the German strong man will have to be at his best. Stan Kuck, formerly of Kansas State Teachers College, also has bettered 51 feet in competition this year, while Eric Krenz of Stanford is good for better than 50 feet.

Germany's sprinters will require a bit of eliminating at Amsterdam, but none has reached the speed of which Charley Borah and some of our own youngsters have proved themselves capable.

It is certain that the Germans will be trying for points in all departments of track and field competition. They are sending the largest delegation of athletes to Amsterdam, stubbornly bent upon winning a place in the Olympic sun.

Germany, you see, never has won an individual Olympic gold medal since the games were revived in 1896. No German has finished first in any Olympic track or field event, save one relay runner whose team was promptly disqualified for infraction of the rules.

Braun, one of Germany's greatest middle distance runners before the war just failed to break the tape in an Olympic 800 metres run, and none of the various German athletes who have come forward from one Olympiad to another has been able to win a first place. This year, it may be different.

If the Olympic games were scored upon some definite point system, such as 5 for first, 4 for second, 3 for third, 2 for fourth and 1 for fifth, Germany would make a better showing than in the matter of first places. Some American commentators will attempt to score the 1928 games in that fashion, and it is likely that Germany will be found to stand not lower than third.

As a matter of fact, there is no internationally accepted scoring system for the Olympic games. It is a case of "Everybody keep his own count."

HISTORIC TOUR AND SUMMER CONVENTION

PLANS for the Seventh Annual "Historic Tour" and Summer Convention, to be held under the auspices of the Minnesota Historical Society on June 13 and 14 were announced to members and friends of the society this week.

The motor caravan will leave the Historical Building, St. Paul, early on the morning of Wednesday, June 13, hold a rendezvous at Anoka, and then head for the site of old Fort Ripley on the west bank of the Mississippi River in Morrison County. At this historic spot a welcoming contingent from the convention city, Brainerd, will meet the tourists with hospitable lunch baskets, and dinner will be served al fresco.

An attractive afternoon program, including a talk on the history of old Fort Ripley by Judge L. B. Kinder of Brainerd, who is historian of the recently formed Crow Wing County Historical Society, a paper dealing with the voyage of the Virginia, the first steamboat to reach Fort Snelling in 1823 by William J. Petersen of Iowa City, Iowa, and several other features has been arranged.

The Minnesota Historical Society and the League of Minnesota Municipalities will join for an evening meeting in Brainerd June 13, when Professor William Anderson of the Political Science Department of the University of Minnesota will deliver an address entitled "Local Government and Local History."

Thursday, June 14, will find the historians again on the move, for North Central Minnesota has many historic spots which are worthy of attention. Among these is Mille Lacs, the scene of the exploits of Du Luth and Father Hennepin, and of the terrific battle between the Sioux and the Chippewa. At Vineland, Indians from the Mille Lacs band will present a program of native songs, dances, and games, and one who has watched the playing of the moccasin game will not soon forget the thrill. There will be papers on the explorer Du Luth by William E. Culkin, President of the St. Louis County Historical Society, and on the Sandy Lake Chippewa by Professor Irving H. Hart of Iowa State Teachers College at Cedar Falls, Iowa, as well as several short talks by persons engaged in welfare work among the Indians.

After lunch the tourists will swing north to the Cuyuna Range, where a short program will be held in the armory at Crosby, for which arrangements are being made by Theo. Johnson of the Crosby Courier and Ray Butts, President of the Crosby Commercial Club.

A joint banquet with the League of Minnesota Municipalities at Breezy Point Lodge on Pelican Lake, at which Bishop G. G. Bennett of Duluth is to be the principal speaker, will close the two days' tour and convention.

The historic tour and convention are open to all, and any persons interested are cordially invited to communicate with the Minnesota Historical Society, St. Paul.

AMONG STRANGERS

"BURY me beneath the roses," was the title of a favorite song as sung by "Jack" Lawrence, member of the Johnston Comedy company while filling an engagement at the little town of Taunton, near Canby, a few days ago. The young man sang the song for the last time, at Taunton, his life having passed out at the Canby hospital a few days later as a result of pneumonia. "Bury me beneath a rose," meant to the kindly people of Canby exactly what it says—strangers to this stranger of a neighboring town. In conformance with the last song he sang at Taunton the citizens of Canby have arranged for the marking of his last resting place in the Canby cemetery by the planting of a rose bush that will flower over his grave.

"Jack" Lawrence was a boy who died far from home. He was a young man who had shifted about for himself, having no close relatives. His home was in the south. Notwithstanding the fact that he was among strangers, and far from home the young man had the best of care at the hospital and a respectable funeral.

This is but another instance of the kindly, human spirit of the people of the smaller towns—towns whom some take pride in pointing to as "Hick" towns. Had the lad been ill and died in any of the larger cities in all probability there would have been no church filled to capacity with sorrowing acquaintances, no feeling of remorse, no planting of a rose bush to mark his last resting place and no community to share in the passing of a kind-hearted, likeable chap, filled with romance who died miles and miles from old acquaintances among strange faces.

It is this spirit, this type of love and feeling where all hearts in the smaller towns beat as one, which makes them the most desirable places in which to live.—Ortonville Independent.

THE FARM BUREAU PICNIC

THE Farm Bureau picnic at Lum park on Friday, June 15, is now an assured fact. The finance committee reports growing success in its quest for the necessary money to make possible this most enjoyable picnic and gathering.

The picnic, modeled along the lines of successful ones of the past, will include the picnic dinner of those attending and each family will bring its hamper of goodies to eat. There will be speaking by some prominent man on a topic of interest to the farmers. There will be band music and a program of sports, the latter to give play to the athletic ability of the contestants.

Lum park has been made a place of beauty and its utilitarian features have not been neglected either. There are tables and benches and fire places for the picnickers. There are row boats and a chute and other water amusements.

A dance will be given in the pavilion, and these affairs are always popular. The Willing Oak Leaves society is the first to apply for a permit to conduct a refreshment stand or concession at the picnic.

There will be ample parking space. The many roadways now leading to the park prevent congestion and permit the park to be rapidly cleared when the picnic is over and everybody gets the desire to leave for home.

RAIN is an absolute necessity in Central Minnesota. Fields are dry, roads are dusty and moisture is a prime essential to aid farmers and to act as a binder on our roads.

Last evening the skies darkened, there was a rush of wind and some rain fell, a negligible quantity, one hundredth of an inch. Earlier in the afternoon a few drops spattered down.

HISTORIC TOUR AND SUMMER CONVENTION

PLANS for the Seventh Annual "Historic Tour" and Summer Convention, to be held under the auspices of the Minnesota Historical Society on June 13 and 14 were announced to members and friends of the society this week.

The motor caravan will leave the Historical Building, St. Paul, early on the morning of Wednesday, June 13, hold a rendezvous at Anoka, and then head for the site of old Fort Ripley on the west bank of the Mississippi River in Morrison County. At this historic spot a welcoming contingent from the convention city, Brainerd, will meet the tourists with hospitable lunch baskets, and dinner will be served al fresco.

An attractive afternoon program, including a talk on the history of old Fort Ripley by Judge L. B. Kinder of Brainerd, who is historian of the recently formed Crow Wing County Historical Society, a paper dealing with the voyage of the Virginia, the first steamboat to reach Fort Snelling in 1823 by William J. Petersen of Iowa City, Iowa, and several other features has been arranged.

The Minnesota Historical Society and the League of Minnesota Municipalities will join for an evening meeting in Brainerd June 13, when Professor William Anderson of the Political Science Department of the University of Minnesota will deliver an address entitled "Local Government and Local History."

Thursday, June 14, will find the historians again on the move, for North Central Minnesota has many historic spots which are worthy of attention. Among these is Mille Lacs, the scene of the exploits of Du Luth and Father Hennepin, and of the terrific battle between the Sioux and the Chippewa. At Vineland, Indians from the Mille Lacs band will present a program of native songs, dances, and games, and one who has watched the playing of the moccasin game will not soon forget the thrill. There will be papers on the explorer Du Luth by William E. Culkin, President of the St. Louis County Historical Society, and on the Sandy Lake Chippewa by Professor Irving H. Hart of Iowa State Teachers College at Cedar Falls, Iowa, as well as several short talks by persons engaged in welfare work among the Indians.

After lunch the tourists will swing north to the Cuyuna Range, where a short program will be held in the armory at Crosby, for which arrangements are being made by Theo. Johnson of the Crosby Courier and Ray Butts, President of the Crosby Commercial Club.

A joint banquet with the League of Minnesota Municipalities at Breezy Point Lodge on Pelican Lake, at which Bishop G. G. Bennett of Duluth is to be the principal speaker, will close the two days' tour and convention.

The historic tour and convention are open to all, and any persons interested are cordially invited to communicate with the Minnesota Historical Society, St. Paul.

AMONG STRANGERS

"BURY me beneath the roses," was the title of a favorite song as sung by "Jack" Lawrence, member of the Johnston Comedy company while filling an engagement at the little town of Taunton, near Canby, a few days ago. The young man sang the song for the last time, at Taunton, his life having passed out at the Canby hospital a few days later as a result of pneumonia. "Bury me beneath a rose," meant to the kindly people of Canby exactly what it says—strangers to this stranger of a neighboring town. In conformance with the last song he sang at Taunton the citizens of Canby have arranged for the marking of his last resting place in the Canby cemetery by the planting of a rose bush that will flower over his grave.

"Jack" Lawrence was a boy who died far from home. He was a young man who had shifted about for himself, having no close relatives. His home was in the south. Notwithstanding the fact that he was among strangers, and far from home the young man had the best of care at the hospital and a respectable funeral.

Officials Praise Class as Most Efficient One in Years

A class of 105 students whose school year was interrupted abruptly by the unforeseen demise of the Washington school building in true Viking fashion last evening received diplomas at commencement exercises at the Park theatre and reecived the praise of school officials as the most efficient graduating class turned out in the high school for years.

The graduates of the school and the class of 11 graduates of the first year teachers training course, were seated on the platform. In one we dream and think and the other act and work. The contrasts are sometimes confusing and we find two kinds of fools, one who knows everything and the other who knows nothing."

Dr. Bugbee traced the pyschology of boy and girl life and that age in a boy's life when he can give his parent or teacher points on any matter of discussion.

"This stage is one that is not permanent but is a passing period in development," Dr. Bugbee continued, "some people get stalled and the result is a character warped by monumental egotism and self conceit.

"The second stage of growth in mentality is that of questioning and wondering if one can be sure of any problem. Life pushes us about from pillar to post. We find problems and questions we cannot answer, we take an attitude to life of deepest skepticism. That too is a passing period of development and leads us to the third stage where some things can be known through the labatory of experience. We then realize that trust and confidence is the ruling quality of life. The man of sincere faith believes in himself and his fellow man. No man can do his best work except in an atmosphere of spirit of confidence.

"Life is really a great adventure. It is an adventure to be born, to go to school, to face life as do the graduates. Each day is a new day coming fresh out of eternity and rich in a new source of faith. It is the set of the sail and not the storm that determines one's course."

One detour has been opened during the past week, on No. 40, north of Austin.

Detours and surface conditions on the so-called Babcock roads marked with the official yellow star are shown in the detailed report below, insofar as they refer to Brainerd Lake Region:

The Christy Bros. Circus which will be here next Friday for two performances has on its list of attractions five herds of elephants and they go through a routine of stunts that will give a thrill to even the old time circus enthusiast. And Miss Gertrude Thomas avers with solemn mien that elephants are just folks and that they can understand every word she utters, and what gives a seeming air of plausibility to this contention is the instant obedience to her every spoken command.

Five rings is a new idea, this is so that five troupes of liberty horses can perform at the same time, same way with the elephants—five herds at a clatter.

TRUNK HIGHWAYS NEARLY ALL GOOD

Trunk highways throughout the state are nearly all listed as good, in the weekly condition report issued by the Minnesota Highway department today. A few routes are reported as "fair" but not a single stretch in the entire system is listed as poor. Dust, however, is becoming a problem on the heavily traveled routes.

A four ton restriction has been ordered on the detour on T. H. No. 10 between Maple Plain and Delano. All other load restrictions have been removed.

One detour has been opened during the past week, on No. 40, north of Austin.

Detours and surface conditions on the so-called Babcock roads marked with the official yellow star are shown in the detailed report below, insofar as they refer to Brainerd Lake Region:

T. H. No. 2 — Duluth, Brainerd, Wadena, Detroit Lakes and Moorhead—260 miles—Duluth, paved—Carlton, good, fair—Cromwell, fair, good—Tamarack, good—McGregor, fair—Aitkin, good—Hawley, paved—Moorhead.

T. H. No. 18—Elk River, Milaca and Brainerd—103 miles—Good—Princeton, rough—Milaca, good—Brainerd.

For the purpose of preserving the tract in its natural state of beauty eight men employed in the Northern Pacific shops have purchased the entire tract of Ahrens Hill overlooking the beautiful Gilbert Lake, Mississippi river and considered one of the finest beauty locations in the district.

The transaction for the purchase of the land comprising approximately 64 acres was made with Richard Ahrens. Attorney M. E. Ryan conducted the legal work involved. The new owners are: F. J. Lowey, William Brown, Ralph R. Strickler, J. Strickler, Nels Jepson, Oscar Erickson, William Webking, and W. A. Eastling. The transaction was recorded this week with the county register of deeds.

LOST OR FOUND—CALL 74

THE ELEPHANTS ARE COMING

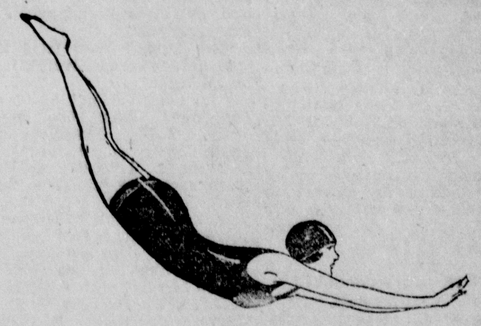

The Christy Bros. Circus which will be here next Friday for two performances has on its list of attractions five herds of elephants and they go through a routine of stunts that will give a thrill to even the old time circus enthusiast. And Miss Gertrude Thomas avers with solemn mien that elephants are just folks and that they can understand every word she utters, and what gives a seeming air of plausibility to this contention is the instant obedience to her every spoken command.

Five rings is a new idea, this is so that five troupes of liberty horses can perform at the same time, same way with the elephants—five herds at a clatter.

The two mile long street parade will leave the show grounds promptly at noon.

GLORIOUS BETSY

NOVELIZED BY ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright 1928, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"GLORIOUS BETSY," starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS

Captain Jerome Bonaparte, brother of Napoleon, falls in love with the bewitching Betsy Patterson on a visit to America. Against the advice of his suite he marries her. They sail for France to brave the anger of the Emperor. Betsy is refused permission to land and while Jerome is leaving the ship to plead anew with his brother a small tug comes alongside. The Emperor has come in person to command Betsy to give up Jerome.. Heartbroken, Betsy watches her husband go off with Napoleon. She returns to Baltimore with her father to face the curious glances and unspoken suspicions of her friends.

"Oh, so that's what brings them?" Betsy whispered back to Sir Harry.

"Oh, but I must, I must," Betsy clenched her tiny fists. "Aunt Ellen, I must! Perhaps they wouldn't believe the impression I made—the great impression I made over there in France, and they must believe it—they must believe it!" She was becoming hysterical. "They must hear all I did and said, and the homage paid me—the homage! And how the great Emperor himself came to the ship for an audience with Mistress Betsy Patterson, and how—" suddenly she clasped her hand to her head; she swayed slightly. "Oh. It is nothing, it's only the journey. We have ridden so far, so far."

The Major caught her and held her tense body tightly. The crowds gathered more closely about her, hanging anxiously on her every word. Jealous women nudged one another as though they scarcely believed that she was telling the truth, and their sly glances, their insinuating looks flamed in Betsy's brain.

"And he—he—Napoleon, said he was proud to honor me, and he kissed my hand." Betsy held out her cold white arm, suddenly she closed her eyes; her face went deathly pale.

"A little sherry," he called, "stand back, everybody, stand back, give her some air." Sir Harry began chafing her wrists and Mistress Massenbird came running in with the glass of wine. She poured it between Betsy's closed lips.

Betsy stirred. "I am tired, so tired," she murmured. She leaned on her cousin Mary, who led her gently through the line of people that opened up for them to allow her to pass. The two disappeared up the winding stairway.

Once in her room Betsy paced up and down wringing her hands nervously. She sobbed hysterically, the sound catching in her throat and making little choking noises. Back and forth, back and forth, as though she would never be able to rest again. Mary watched her, unable to stop this mad unceasing pain that seemed to hold the lovely figure so tightly in its grasp.

"Please, Betty—Betty, dear, do try to sit down for just a moment." She took her cousin's hands and patted them lovingly.

"No, no, Mary, I can't. I can't." Betsy pulled her hands away as though she could not bear Mary's touch. She must walk and walk, clenching her fists until the nails cut deep into the white flesh. "I shall never rest again. Don't look at me like that. I can't bear to be pitied, even by you. I don't want pity."

"Why, Betty, I—I didn't mean," Mary began, but she could not keep the pathos from her look. She struggled to hide the tears that welled from her sympathetic heart. To her, Betty's pain was the same as though it were her own.

"Oh, I know how changed I am." Betsy turned to look at her cousin, her white face even whiter in the candle light that showered prismatic gleams from the pendent chandeliers. "Just look at me, Mary, look at me. I'm not the Betty who left here three months ago, outrageously happy. I'm another person."

"Oh, no, you don't know what's happened." Betsy shook her head sadly. "I have just been fibbing scandalously to all those people downstairs. I wasn't telling the truth about my triumphs, my successes in France. No, Mary, there was nothing but heartache over there for Betty Patterson. I—I have failed. I've lost him, Mary—I've lost him. Oh, my God." She buried her face in her hands.

"Ah, Betty, you'll be happy again. There are so many who love you." Mary soothed her cousin as best she could.

"Mary, it isn't that. It's that for once Betsy Patterson has met defeat." She shuddered. "When I told them downstairs about the Emperor coming on board for an audience with me, that wasn't really true—he did come on board, but it was to take from me the only man I've ever truly loved. He did kiss my hand and said that he was proud to honor me, but that was only because I was brave, and I didn't cry when I saw my husband leave."

"Betty, Betty, my poor, dear Betty." Mary stroked her cousin's hair, the tears welling up in her eyes. She sat thinking of what agony Betsy must have endured. The proud, disdainful girl who had never in her life had to give up anything at all, being forced to speak the words that she knew meant a lifetime of unhappiness. "Perhaps, Betty, after a while you will forget him. There are so many others who would be honored—"

"Ah, no, no, Mary, that can never be." Betsy put her arms about her cousin's neck. "I haven't told you everything, yet. Mary, I'm going to have a child—a little baby—Jerome's baby." She buried her head on Mary's shoulder.

"Betty, oh my dear, dear Betty." Mary patted her cousin tenderly.

"That's why I'll never be able to forget him. Not that I ever want to," Betty choked back the tears. "But always in his child I will see his likeness. I will always be reminded of his ways—the thought of him will be constantly before me."

"I can scarcely believe it," Mary gasped. "But surely, Betsy, when he knows of this he will come back to you."

"No, no! By that time he will have become a stranger person. He will be under the rule of his brother, and you have no idea how strongly that will affect him. Oh, my dear, dear Mary, I can never forget him. Why, the whole place is filled with the memory of him." She rose wearily and walked over to the window, looking out at the garden.

Once more the memory of that May evening came to her. She could smell the roses that had bloomed so hopefully and so fragrantly in the soft air of the late spring. She could see all the little stars that had twinkled there in the sky when she had been so happy, so free, and so joyous. She remembered how hurt she had felt when she thought that Jerome had forgotten her. How little that hurt seemed in comparison to this dragging pain that agonized her now.

"Oh, Mary, Mary, I want it all back again—my youth, my happiness, my hope," she sighed. "And it's gone. I'll never feel that way again. I have grown old, ages old. Ah, yes, Mary, I'm a woman now." She put her arm about Mary's waist, as her cousin came and stood beside her. "It almost seemed as though just for a second I was myself again when I came into the room and saw all my old friends waiting there for me. But it was only for the second, because every face brought up some reminder of the past."

Mary nodded silently, for she, too, was thinking of that spring evening when they had all been so happy together. It was the same evening that George had proposed to her, and she had felt that the future of both Betsy and herself was assured of all the most beautiful things that life could offer. And now everything seemed so hopeless. Even though she, herself, was secure in her own love she could scarcely bear the thought of Betsy's broken heart.

"It was out in the arbor there," Betsy pointed to the dark form of the trellis work below. "It was out there he first told me he loved me. Ah, Mary, do you remember that night of the fete? I can close my eyes, and it all comes back to me. The lights, the flowers, the music, his face, his voice. Oh, God, it all seems like a dream. Sometimes almost a nightmare that I cannot wake from." She leaned her head against the casement and stared out, unseeing, unheeding.

NOVELIZED BY ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright 1928, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"GLORIOUS BETSY," starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS

Captain Jerome Bonaparte, brother of Napoleon, falls in love with the bewitching Betsy Patterson on a visit to America. Against the advice of his suite he marries her. They sail for France to brave the anger of the Emperor. Betsy is refused permission to land and while Jerome is leaving the ship to plead anew with his brother a small tug comes alongside. The Emperor has come in person to command Betsy to give up Jerome.. Heartbroken, Betsy watches her husband go off with Napoleon. She returns to Baltimore with her father to face the curious glances and unspoken suspicions of her friends.

"Oh, so that's what brings them?" Betsy whispered back to Sir Harry

"Oh, but I must, I must," Betsy clenched her tiny fists. "Aunt Ellen, I must! Perhaps they wouldn't believe the impression I made—the great impression I made over there in France, and they must believe it—they must believe it!" She was becoming hysterical. "They must hear all I did and said, and the homage paid me—the homage! And how the great Emperor himself came to the ship for an audience with Mistress Betsy Patterson, and how—" suddenly she clasped her hand to her head; she swayed slightly. "Oh, it is nothing, it's only the journey We have ridden so far, so far."

The Major caught her and held her tense body tightly. The crowds gathered more closely about her, hanging anxiously on her every word. Jealous women nudged one another as though they scarcely believed that she was telling the truth, and their sly glances, their insinuating looks flamed in Betsy's brain.

"And he—he—Napoleon, said he was proud to honor me, and he kissed my hand." Betsy held out her cold white arm, suddenly she closed her eyes; her face went deathly pale.

"A little sherry," he called, "stand back, everybody, stand back, give her some air." Sir Harry began chafing her wrists and Mistress Massenbird came running in with the glass of wine. She poured it between Betsy's closed lips.

Betsy stirred. "I am tired, so tired," she murmured. She leaned on her cousin Mary, who led her gently through the line of people that opened up for them to allow her to pass. The two disappeared up the winding stairway.

Once in her room Betsy paced up and down wringing her hands nervously. She sobbed hysterically, the sound catching in her throat and making little choking noises. Back and forth, back and forth, as though she would never be able to rest again. Mary watched her, unable to stop this mad unceasing pain that seemed to hold the lovely figure so tightly in its grasp.

"Please, Betty—Betty, dear, do try to sit down for just a moment." She took her cousin's hands and patted them lovingly.

"No, no, Mary, I can't. I can't." Betsy pulled her hands away as though she could not bear Mary's touch. She must walk and walk, clenching her fists until the nails cut deep into the white flesh. "I shall never rest again. Don't look at me like that. I can't bear to be pitied, even by you. I don't want pity."

"Why, Betty, I—I didn't mean," Mary began, but she could not keep the pathos from her look. She struggled to hide the tears that welled from her sympathetic heart. To her, Betty's pain was the same as though it were her own.

"Oh, I know how changed I am." Betsy turned to look at her cousin, her white face even whiter in the candle light that showered prismatic gleams from the pendent chandeliers. "Just look at me, Mary, look at me. I'm not the Betty who left here three months ago, outrageously happy. I'm another person."

"Oh, no, you don't know what's happened." Betsy shook her head sadly. "I have just been fibbing scandalously to all those people downstairs. I wasn't telling the truth about my triumphs, my successes in France. No, Mary, there was nothing but heartache over there for Betty Patterson. I—I have failed. I've lost him, Mary—I've lost him. Oh, my God." She buried her face in her hands.

"Ah, Betty, you'll be happy again. There are so many who love you." Mary soothed her cousin as best she could.

"Mary, it isn't that. It's that for once Betsy Patterson has met defeat." She shuddered. "When I told them downstairs about the Emperor coming on board for an audience with me, that wasn't really true—he did come on board, but it was to take from me the only man I've ever truly loved. He did kiss my hand and said that he was proud to honor me, but that was only because I was brave, and I didn't cry when I saw my husband leave."

"Betty, Betty, my poor, dear Betty." Mary stroked her cousin's hair, the tears welling up in her eyes. She sat thinking of what agony Betsy must have endured. The proud, disdainful girl who had never in her life had to give up anything at all, being forced to speak the words that she knew meant a lifetime of unhappiness. "Perhaps, Betty, after a while you will forget him. There are so many others who would be honored—"

"Ah, no, no, Mary, that can never be." Betsy put her arms about her cousin's neck. "I haven't told you everything, yet. Mary, I'm going to have a child—a little baby—Jerome's baby." She buried her head on Mary's shoulder.

"Betty, oh my dear, dear Betty." Mary patted her cousin tenderly.

"That's why I'll never be able to forget him. Not that I ever want to," Betty choked back the tears. "But always in his child I will see his likeness. I will always be reminded of his ways—the thought of him will be constantly before me."

"I can scarcely believe it," Mary gasped. "But surely, Betsy, when he knows of this he will come back to you."

"No, no! By that time he will have become a master person. He will be under the rule of his brother, and you have no idea how strongly that will affect him. Oh, my dear, dear Mary, I can never forget him. Why, the whole place is filled with the memory of him." She rose wearily and walked over to the window, looking out at the garden.

Once more the memory of that May evening came to her. She could smell the roses that had bloomed so hopefully and so fragrantly in the soft air of the late spring. She could see all the little stars that had twinkled there in the sky when she had been so happy, so free, and so joyous. She remembered how hurt she had felt when she thought that Jerome had forgotten her. How little that hurt seemed in comparison to this dragging pain that agonized her now.

"Oh, Mary, Mary, I want it all back again—my youth, my happiness, my hope," she sighed. "And it's gone. I'll never feel that way again. I have grown old, ages old. Ah, yes, Mary, I'm a woman now." She put her arm about Mary's waist, as her cousin came and stood beside her. "It almost seemed as though just for a second I was myself again when I came into the room and saw all my old friends waiting there for me. But it was only for the second, because every face brought up some reminder of the past."

Mary nodded silently, for she, too, was thinking of that spring evening when they had all been so happy together. It was the same evening that George had proposed to her, and she had felt that the future of both Betsy and herself was assured of all the most beautiful things that life could offer. And now everything seemed so hopeless. Even though she, herself, was secure in her own love she could scarcely bear the thought of Betsy's broken heart.

"It was out in the arbor there," Betsy pointed to the dark form of the trellis work below. "It was out there he first told me he loved me. Ah, Mary, do you remember that night of the fete? I can close my eyes, and it all comes back to me. The lights, the flowers, the music, his face, his voice. Oh, God, it all seems like a dream. Sometimes almost a nightmare that I cannot wake from." She leaned her head against the casement and stared out, unseeing, unheeding.
